

Abstract:

A method of manufacturing lampshades, including: having a plurality of end-users each select a graphical design for a lampshade; printing a plurality of selected graphical designs together on a single substrate; cutting out individual sections of the substrate, the sections corresponding to the selected graphical designs; and forming a lampshade from each of the individual cut out sections of the substrate.